Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

In a town of two thousand population when an election is pending that afects the city government, and when citizens offer their candidacy for posts in that government the only reward for which is the sense of accepting an honor and discharging its duties satisfactorily, there is not much that a newspaper can do about it which any citizen interested in his community's welfare, could not do.

This is true because any voter reasonably awake to his responsibilities knows the candidates either personally or by reputation as well as members of a newspaper staff. However in general it can be said that those candidates who have made a success of their job, their businesses, and who own their homes, and have proved their public spirit in unselfish service to their communities, invariably give satisfactory service to their city when chosen to the responsibilities of the city council.

In practically all California cities there is an element, a segment of the population, which is interested in creating better conditions for various forms of vice. Unfortunately for this group the laws of California, unlike those of Nevada, impose very stringent regulations and for many things, such as gambling, they are prohibitory. Of course, when some minor group does manage to get control of a city government, they are able by winking at law violation, temporarily to give the town that "wide-open" condition that inevitably results in bribery and graft.

Governments controlled by rowdy and law violating elements not only render a town a less desirable place in which to live, they also are tremendously costly to the tax payer. But when the majority in any city taken over by its disreputables, lose their control it is because they will not take the trouble to GET OUT AND VOTE at municipal elections.

A few years ago a bold attempt was made to turn this city over to vice businesses. It will be remembered that a certain Hotcha Palace applied to the city council for a license. The chief of police and majority of the council turned down the application very firmly indeed. They were backed up by the Woman's Civic club and other citizens. The alignment on the city council at that time is something that voters should remember when they go to the polls next Tuesday. It is well to remember for instance that Mayor Hall was a member of the majority of the council at that time, which refused the Hotcha outfit permission to establish a gambling emporium on Broad Street.

It is well to examine the candidacies of those who seek election next Tuesday with a view to keeping on the city council a majority who will rigorously exclude such institutions as the Hotcha Palace. We think it should be a prerequisite to public office in any county or city, candidates should have a stake in the town in which they live. Candidates for public office, we feel, should own their own homes, and be tax payers, with a fellow feeling for other tax payers. Rarely will a tax payer vote for fly-by-night enterprises, or licenses for law violating businesses. For any tax payer knows that these instittions draw to cities an undesirable element, that they cause juvenile delinquency, and that they increase cost of policing, jailing etc., and only a few of the disreputables that seek these so-called amusements and make a business of vice and debauchery profit by them, to the detriment of the rest of the community.

In practically every community these disasters can be prevented if all citizens GET OUT AND VOTE.

Directors Of Chamber Are Elected

The newly elected directors of the Nevada City Chambef or Commerce will meet Monday night to select a president, vice president and secretary-treasurer. of the local booster organization.

The new directors were named Tuesday night at a meeting in the Shamrock Cafe. They are: Hal Draper, George Gildersleeve, H. F. Sofge, R. J. Berggren, Richard Worth, Bud Kyle and H. S. Foreman.

The more than 20 members in attendance at the meeting enjoyed coffee and doughnuts.

A resolution was adopted, thanking outgoing officers and directors for their service to the chamber during the past year. Outgoing Vice President H. E. Kjorlie was given particular thanks for devoting much time to the folder which was printed during the past year. It was pointed out the folder, which attractively illustrates Nevada City attractiveness for residents and fr vacationists, was due principally to Kjorlie's efforts.

Candidates for the position of director of the chamber in addition to those elected were:

Guerdon Ellis is retiring president. Vice President Kjorlie did not care to become president of the organization, inasmuch as other duties require a considerable portion of his spare time.

Mobley Is Visitor—

Myers Mobley, former resident now employed as a pharmacist in Vallejo, is visiting relatives and friends in Nevada City.

Hydraulic Mining Association To Meet Sunday At North San Juan

The April meeting of the California Hydraulic Mining Association will be held Sunday afternoon at historic North San Juan.

The regular meeting will start at 2 p. m. but a luncheon will be served at 1 p. m. for those who desire.

Arrangements for the meeting are being made by H. F. Sofge and Geo. Gildersleeve of Nevada City.

In addition to important business to be transacted, Bob Adamson of the Ingersoll-Rand Company will show mining pictures, including underground mining work.

Past President George Hallock will give a report on the priority situation as it concerns mining. Hallock has attended all the meetings held on the priority question.

SUICIDES IN SIERRA

William Black, 64, committed suicide, according to Sierra County officers, at the Alpha Derrer Mine, where he was caretaker, recently. The body was found Tuesday. A revolver was found beside the body.

The body of Black was brought to the Holmes Funeral Home here where final rites are pending.

SUCCUMBS HERE

Phillip Hoffman, 66, a laborer who was stricken ill several days ago on a Grass Valley street, died Tuesday at the Nevada County Hospital. The Holmes Funeral Home took charge of the remains.

GENE TUCKER ARRIVES IN NEVADA CITY

Eugene Tucker, well known Nevada City resident, who had been in the employ of the Newmont Mining Corporation in South Africa for the past several years, is back in Nevada City following an adventurous trip across the Atlantic.

The combined cargo and passenger ship on which Tucker sailed from South Africa on March 1st, was torpedoed in the Atlantic and Tucker told friends here he now knows what it feels like to be dead.

Tucker was among the 88 passengers and members of the crew rescued. Following his arrival in the U. S. he immedaitely took an airplane for San Francisco to see his brother, Bob, who is ill in the University of California Hospital.

RETURNS FROM PANAMA

Harold Deeter, well known local miner and former superintendent of the Mack Mine here, has returned from Panama, where he had been employed for months as a safety engineer. Deeter was transferred from the Panama job to a defense project in Nevada. Mrs. Deeter went to San Francisco to meet her husband, who is to leave for his new job after spending several days here.

Caught in the Riffles

Last night a local man received a long distance call from Sacramento. A male voice said:

"I'm warning you! You better stop going out with my girl friend."

And, peculiarly, this "girl friend" two days ago received a letter, postmarked Sacramento, and in a woman's handwriting, threatening her if she continued her friendship with a Grass Valley man now employed in defense work.

The Grass Valley man is a frequent weekend visitor in this city and at the present time is ahead in the battle for the local woman's affections.

The situation has reached a point where at least one of the parties concerned no longer thinks it is "amoozin" and a consultaation with the district attorney is to be secured.

The other morning a local resident saw a quarter gleaming among the debris in the gutter in front of the Save More Store. A day or two later Ed Martine found a dime and one penny near the Purity Store. Another resident sighted a ten cent piece in the gutter in front of the Harris Drug Store but being a modest soul he didn't stoop to pick it p because it was covered with ud and there were too many onlookers.

Anyway, all that leads to a possibility the city council may be overlooking a bet in not calling for bids, the man offering the highest percentage of money found being given a contract to sweep the streets.

Work On New Post Office Starts

Construction of Nevada City's new $20,000 postoffice, scheduled to be occupied by July 1st, got underway here Tuesday.

The postoffice is being built by R. Perrott of Oakland. Although the building is being constructed with private capital, a priority on material is available because it will house a federal agency.

Perrot came to Nevada City to complete final details for the start of work on the building, which is being erected on Commercial and Main Streets.

The lot was sold to Perrott by F. F. Cassidy and Walter Daniels, local realtor, handled the deal.

DR. WERNER TO BE LECTURER

Dr. G. A. Werner, professor of history at the College of the Pacific and one of the leading authorities on Latin America on the Pacific Coast, will be the speaker at the Nevada City Public Forum at the elementary school here tonight. Dr. Werner's lecture will open at 7:30. At 8:30 an hour's discussion will start.

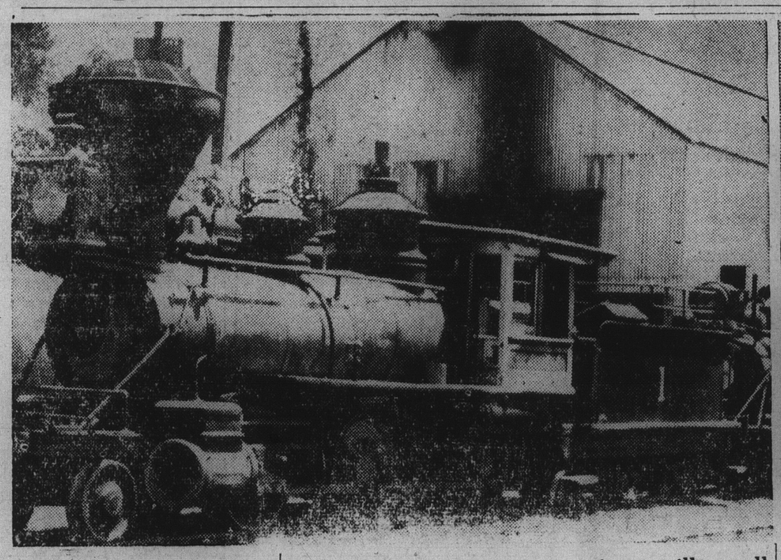
"The role of Russia" will be the topic of Dr. Werner's lecture, which will be the fourth of the series of lectures sponsored by the Nevada City Unified School district.

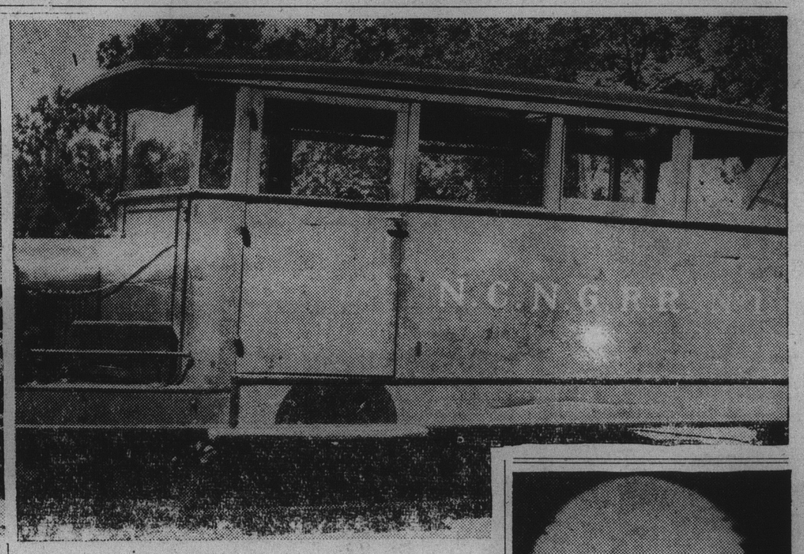
Lambert Thomas received a letter from Herb Caen, S. F. newspaper columnist, stating the information contained in Caen's column that 2500 miners in Nevada City would be out of work by May 1st, was obtained from a "prominent Nevada Cityan" who happened to be in the bay city recently.

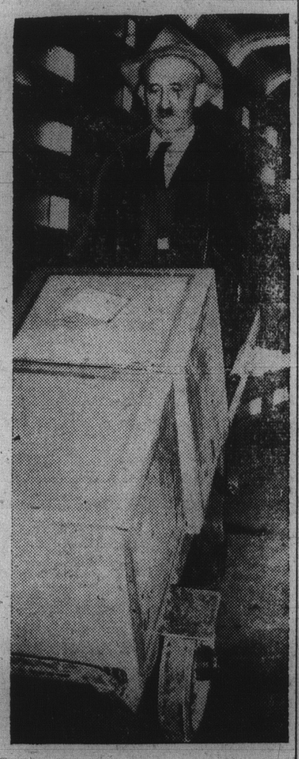
What! A traitor in our midst?

Fred Williford, former Nevada County Deputy Sheriff, hasnt officially announced his candidacy for sheriff but already in distribution are match packages boosting Williford as "the man for the job."

Progress Spells End Of Colorful Narrow Gauge R. R. Line







Progress in transportation will spell doom for the old system in use on the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad Company's line between Nevada City and Colfax. An application has been presented to the state railroad commission for permission to abandon the rail line and concentrate completely on bus and freight truck service. The road, completed sixty six years ago to serve the mines in the district, has had a colorful history. Top, left, Engine No. 1, which, with other rolling stock will be sold to the highest bidder. The rails will find their way into channels devoted to the war effort.

Top, right, the strange item of equipment familiar to Nevada County residents under the name of "Casey Jones," a combination locomotive and coach, made partly from an automobile truck. Lower left, Thomas Kennedy, warehouse superintendent, who has been employed by the railroad for fifty two years. Kennedy, who also acts as collector for the railroad, has collected millions of dollars and was only short changed once.

Lower right, John F. Kidder, who surveyed the route of the line and later became its principal owner and president, and Mrs. Kidder, who succeeded her husband as president and general manager of the line.

Although the steam road no longer will be a part of the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad, the company will continue operations with buses and automotive freight carriers.

"The application for abandonment of the steam road is a progressive step," President J. E. Taylor said. "Today's modern narrow gauge company, with its streamlined buses with nationwide connections and fleet freight trucks, provides overnight service from San Francisco and door to door delivery in the communities of Nevada City and Grass Valley."

Taylor said no time will be lost in tearing up the tracks and salvaging all possible steel and metal from the bridges, tunnels, and other equipment when the application is approved.

The using of the tracks and other steel for the war will be a spectacular finale to the railroad, which has had a colorful career since the golden spike marking its completion was driven in Nevada City in May, sixty-six years ago.

GIVE 'EM A SENDOFF!

A tiny item out of Washington quotes an Ohio congressman as condemning the "silly shush shush policy of many local draft boards" in inducting men into the armed forces and calling for a "roaring sendoff" for draftees.

The congressmen's suggestion deserves much more attention than it so far has received.

How in the world can you drum up any enthusiasm for the war if you sneak the boys who fight it off to camp without even letting their friends know they're gone?

As it is now, a man gets his call to report. His family tells him goodby, and perhaps an intimate friend or two wish him well. Then he vanishes. It may be weeks before most of his friends even know he has gone.

It's a military secret, they say, because blaring publicity about inductions would give information of aid and comfort to the enemy.

But how could information of this sort be of any possible use to the enemy?

Surely, the enemy spies have easier ways to estimate the total strength of our armed forces than to stand in line in each community throughout the nation and count the draftees as they march by.

And if we gave our boys the "roaring sendoff" which the congressman suggests, we wouldn't have to say where they were going, what unit or branch of the service they were assigned to, or anything else—except that here is a lad who is going off to war, to fight for your freedom and ours, and we're proud of him and want him back when it's all over.

Why not give the boys a chance to see that someone in town appreciates what they're going out to do?

Why not give their little brothers and sisters a chance to puff up with pride as they see the big brother march by in glory, instead of being sent off virtually in the dead of night as though it were something to be hidden?

Why not let the mothers and sweethearts of these boys see their loved ones get a ringing cheer from all the neighbors and loved ones?

Why not let us all show that we're behind the men who are going off to fight?

What's wrong with getting a little spirit into the war?

Are martial music and marching feet and waving flags and cheering crowds to be forbidden just to make sure the boys are convinced their task is a grim and unpleasant one, rather than a glorious call to defend everything that Americans hold sacred?

We say all these things should be encouraged not prohibited—that no effort should be spared to give the boys a sendoff that will thrill them and let them all know beyond any doubt that the folks at home are with them with everything they've got.—Sacramento Union.

ARTESIAN WELL FOUND AT TAHOE

Artesian well water having excellent qualities for domestic use has been definitely found near the north short of Lake Tahoe on the Riolo Club property at the edge of the Brockway Golf Course, as revealed to District Ranger H. I. Snider by J. V. Riolo, owner of the property. Snider believes this is the only known artesian fresh water found among the many wells drilled in the Lake Tahoe drainage of the Tahoe National Forest, although the hot mineral springs at the Brockway Resort have known to run over the surface of the ground separate from and at the edge of Lake Tahoe since this area was occupied by pioneer settlers and probably many hundreds of years before.

Mr. Riolo informed Snider one peculiar feature about the artesian force of the water is that, since the well was drilled three years ago, the water stops running out of the pipe of its own violition about the first part of December and starts running again about the first part of March, with a force sufficient to flow through faucets in the Riolo kitchen without pumping, although pumping is necessary later in the summer, especially to raise the water to the second story of the lodging quarters. Snider believes the reason for the variation of the flow is probably due to the ground at the higher elevations freezing in early winter, cutting off a large portion of the surface flow from entering the substrata, and when the ground thaws under the snow later in the winter, the water in the surface soils again find its way down through the subterranean channel to the area near the lake.

In the past the fact that water wells dug twenty to sixty feet deep within a half mile of Lake Tahoe and that the Brockway mineral spring water at the very edge of Lake Tahoe, all have a different chemical analysis than the Lake Tahoe water, has convinced local residents there is an underground formation near the edge of the lake that is impervious to allowing these liquid sources to thoroughly mix. This view is now further amplified by the artesion force which would not exist, of the underground flow to the lake was not obstruceed by such an impervious ground strata, Snider states. Snider has observed that no wells dug in the Brockway-Tahoe Vista area have been known to go dry during the summer months, which indicates an ample supply of this most necessary of all liquids to sustain natural life of all kinds.

Ranger Snider Celebrates Skiing Facility Recovery

On March 31, Ranger H. I. Snider skied from Lake Tahoe near Brockway to Truckee, repairing the Forest Service telephone line, and reports about four feet of heavy packed snow on Brockway Summit, while the road in Martis Valley has only about one foot of snow on it.

This trip, Snider said, was one of celebrating recovery of his skiing facilities, as it was just a year ago on that date that he suffered a broken ankle while on a snow survey trip and was marooned in a shelter cabin for two weeks, fifteen miles south of Donner Summit, during which time snow storms hampeded the work of rescue parties and an airplane was employed to drop food between storms to Snider and James Wheeler who was detailed to stay with the injured ranger. Snider had set the broken bones as soon as the accident happened and they mended in good condition.

ARSON CHARGE IS DISMISSED

Justice of the Peace Charles Morehouse of Grass Valley Township Tuesday dismissed a charge of arson against Robert Wear, 57. The dismissal followed testimony at Wear's preliminary hearing and was ordered because insufficient evidence.

The complaint against Wear was filed by John S. Heckey, who accused Wear of setting a fire which burned the Heckey home and for attemping to burn the Heckey automobile.

In 1940 Wear was held on a charge of slaying his brother, Jerry, but a jury in the superior court here found him not guilty.

GERALD WALLACE NOW PRACTICING LAW IN AUBURN

Gerald Wallace came back to his home town Monday. He is an Auburn attorney now. He has always wanted to return to this part of the state ever since he left Nevada City to study law at the University of California.

Gerald lived in Nevada City with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Arnhart, while going to school. He graduated from the local grammar and high school.

Judge J. B. Landis recently appointed him Superior Coort Commissioner for Placer County. That makes him an assistant to the judge in handling court matters except trials.

Commissioner Wallace lectures on law to adult evening classes at Placer Junior College. He is widely known as a sportsman and author. He is president of the Western Sportsmen's Association with members in seven states. He has been a feature writer for the San Francisco Chronicle for the past five years.

He formerly practiced law in Oroville, Stockton and San Francisco.

FIREWORKS ARE BANNED HERE FOR DURATION

Fire Chief Carl Larsen said today the sale or use of fire works in Nevada City will absolutely be prohibited. Chief Larsen issued the order following communication from Gov. Culbert Olson. The communication reads as follows:

"To all chiefs of fire departments in California:

"The use of fireworks, either in public celebrations or by individuals, during this emergency is recognized as presenting serious fire hazards, including the forest fire hazard. Lieutenant General John L. DeWitt, U. S. Army Commanding, has asked that appropriate action be taken in the States of California, Oregon and Washington to prohibit the sale of fireworks to the public during the existence of the emergency.

"Under Sections 12500-12513 of the Health and Safety Code, no one may use fireworks without a permit from the local fire departments in those communities that do not strictly prohibit their use. As I interpret this Statute, you have the power to deny all such applications. Therefore, the purpose of this communicatio is to urge that during this emergency you deny any and all applications for the use of fireworks in the area you serve. This should serve as notice to all dealers in fireworks that permits for their use cannot be obtained and, therefore, sales should not be engaged in."

ENGLEBRIGHT SEEKS FUNDS TO GUARD FORESTS

A nearly 10-fold increase in the apprppriation for forest fire prevention and fighting—from $2,000,000 to $19,000,000—was sought yesterday by members of the Pacific Coast congressional delegation. They appeared recently before the senate appropriations committee to plead the cause of western forests which they said offered excellent targets for sabotage.

Representative Englebright, California Republican told the committee, that enemy planes, could attack from the northwest and drop incendiary bombs on the forests.

The subsequent fires, he said, would be difficult to locate and repel the attackers. He said his view was shared by army officers.

The representative told the committee that the usual fires that occur every year must be prevented this year as they would disruupt the transportation and destroy timber products, going into war production. He said large fires would cause smoke to cover defense areas and be a danger to industries there.

Senator Bone (D., Wash.) and Rep. Smith (D., Wash.) also urged the committee to increase the appropriation. Both of the Washington spokesmen pointed to the danger that would threaten the Pacific states if fires were not prevented.

Downieville Rainfall Six Inches Above Normal

The rainfall recorded at the Downieville Ranger Station was only 4.03 inches for the month of March. This, according to District Ranger Frank B. Delaney, is the lightest rainfall received during the month of March since the automatic rain gauge was installed three years ago. However, the total rainfall to date is 66.10 inches or approximately six inches above the total season average.

RUSSIAN ROADS TO SUPPLY WAR NEEDS OF CHINA

LOS ANGELES, April 9. — With the prospects of the completion of the new Assam road to bring supplies into China within fifteen months, it may be necessary to transport spplies and materials through Russia in the opinion of Prince Andre Lobanoy-Bostovsky, veteran of World War I.

Now associate professor of history at the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, Dr. Lobanov indicates that Communist influence is likely to be strengthened in China through the necessitated use of the entrance of lend-lease or direct aid supplies from Russia. The next fifteen months, before the Assam road can be ready, is likely to turn the tide of the war, he believes. Incidentally, Dr. Lobanov adds, two-thirds of truck loads from Russia via the Gobi Desert and Turkestan, would have to consist of gasoline.

"Japan's conquest of areas producing raw materials, such as Malaya, is likely to become a cause of friction with the Axis camp," says Dr. Lobanov. "Germany is not likely to tolerate the permanent holding by Japan of valuable areas of the kind which she herself has been unable to secure."

As for Russia's stand against Japan, Dr. Lobanov inclines to the opinion that Russia will not strike except in self-defense.

"It is a mistake to consider the Japanese war as a mere appendage of the Nazi war," he maintains. "There is no indication that if the German armies are defeated the Japanese will stop fighting."

MORE THAN ANY OTHER SERVICE

the director of funerals needs the confidence and trust of the public. His service is one that calls for the exercise of every resource in tactfulness, kindness, and in human understanding and sympathy, as well as in satisfying the individual requirements of each one that seeks his service. The ability to fulfill this function in the life of the community comes through long training and experience. It is this quality that has won us many friends in Nevada County.

IF ELECTED TO THE CITY COUNCIL—

To give my city the best administration within my ability without increasing the present tax rate

To see to it, so far as my vote counts, that Nevada City continues to be a place where the fathers and mothers can rear their children in an environment of decency, good schools and civic cleanliness.

To examine carefully all city expenses with the view to making every dollar of tax money buy a dollar's worth of goods or services for the city.
